Hilltop Crier for November 20

Loving the Math

I never really loved math. I could blame my teachers or the textbooks they used, but - upon reflection - I should probably just admit that my gifts lie elsewhere.

Thankfully, there are plenty of people who love math and are good at doing it. And because they do love math and are good at doing it, they are able to launch astronauts into space and design products that work and make sure that ballots are counted and recounted...
